

Anti-Modern Slavery Statement

Ethical Commitment

The JT Group (“JTG”) is opposed to slavery and human trafficking and is committed to making meaningful improvements to sustainable workplace conditions and business practices including, but not limited to, the prevention of forced or trafficked labour. Through modifying our own operations and encouraging our suppliers to do so, we consider the social, environmental and financial impact of our business throughout our supply chain. We are joining our industry peers in global initiatives that drive corporate responsibility throughout the telecommunications industry.

This statement is made pursuant to Section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the “Act”) and constitutes our slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending 31 December 2017. It sets out the steps JTG has taken to ensure that slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in our supply chains or in any part of our business.

Our Business

JTG is wholly owned by the States of Jersey and has operated for 120 years in Jersey in the Channel Islands. We have over 120 years' experience in the telecommunications industry. With more than 1 million subscribers, 2,200 business customers and 11 offices globally, we are dedicated to delivering a world-class service.

Our Supply Chains and Due Diligence Processes

We are committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chains or in any part of our business. Our working practices reflect our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships and to maintaining effective systems to ensure forced labour or trafficking is not taking place anywhere in our supply chains.

Corporate Social Responsibility (“CSR”) and Risk Assessment

We have a CSR policy in place to ensure that our business is conducted according to rigorous ethical, moral, professional and legal standards. As part of our supply chain on-boarding process we carry out specific due diligence as well as ‘Know Your Client’ and credit checks and audits to ensure compliance with this policy, as well as including contractual terms to ensure that the requisite safeguards are in place and our chosen suppliers meet the criteria set out in our CSR policy.

All suppliers are subjected to a comprehensive risk assessment. Each supplier is rated low, medium or high risk, taking into account the country in which they are based, the business relationship that is being established, credit and other background checks as well as our personal knowledge of their business. As a high risk industry, we have a particular CSR focus on the manufacturing side of the business where our handsets and SIM cards are put together. We endeavour to carry out rigorous checks including obtaining external due diligence reports and carrying out site visits to ensure our suppliers adhere to our standards. Our directors frequently meet with our suppliers to discuss any concerns that are raised and ensure these are addressed without delay.

Our Training

We take our corporate social responsibility and ethics extremely seriously. We understand that training is a fundamental way to raise awareness and to effectively implement the organisation's commitment to fair working practices. We are undertaking a programme of training to ensure that our staff are aware of our stance on modern slavery and are committed to ensuring that all business operations are conducted to the highest ethical standards and in accordance with our CSR policy.
